12 main groups of stairs and agreements for plan players: free and printable download. Monetary stairs and two octaves, agreements I, IV and V, is inversions of tonic and arpeggi chords, all on a sheet for each key! Scroll down the page for free PDF download links: as a child, I had no idea how long the exercises must have used to write- even for all those keys! - But even then, I appreciated and had fun playing these schemes. It looked like something a little magical and comforting in this routine: reproduce a scheme in a key and then repeat it in another key, necessarily adjusting the position of the hand and using different fingering choices, obtaining the same general sound, but with one sudden freshness. My piano teacher wrote all 12 main stairs, grants, cadences, inversions of agreements and arpeggios for me when I was a child. But he did it by hand! At the time there were no copying machines ... how much we became spoiled. I always begin to assign the 12 stairs and the main agreements with the "key of C" sheet. This does not be until my plan on the plan are able to read the notes of agreements in the first measure (number 1) - or until they have to be able to play inversions of agreements and the eighth scale, in what case I give them the sheet of basic agreements and stairs, with notes with letters. We do not move quickly: on their assignment sheet, they write "key to sheet C, n. 1" until they can do it quickly without any suggestions. Soon, their assignment sheet Dirä: "Key of C Sheet, #2, #3, #4". In the end, they will drop the more easy numbers from their assignment and collect the most difficult techniques, such as the inversions of agreements and arpeggios: my students are always anxious to start normal stairs a Eighth, perhaps because I don't introduce them early, but I spend a lot of time on pentatonic stairs. You could ask you because I wrote the 2 octave stairs in a mirror way, with my hands moving in a opposite movement instead of parallel, parallel. Using corresponding fingers "1-2-3, 1-2-3-4, (Tuck under) 1-2-3 etc." It is a very easy way to learn a C scale of combination of hands initially. (And the page did not seem beautiful with crowded fingers when I initially spread it with parallel stairs!) With the 1-octave scale, this is the way I approach my hands together, so that they can have fun reaching speed e Coordination on the "big stretch" also in the initial phases of learning where in tuck under and cross over. Please scroll the page for download links. Of course, this becomes much more difficult in the following stairs, when the black notes enter the image! In fact, once the students of the piano have learned the parallel stairs in a key, it becomes very much easier to make them in all 12 main stairs, and we simply go straight to parallel stairs. The concept of agreements I, IV and V seems evident to the plan teachers who have been thinking for years, but the connections are not at all evident of some young students. I try to continue to strengthen their understanding of the theory, coming to it from different corners, such as playing "Louie Louie", but using only main agreements (the real version has a minor agreement) ... when they memorized it, then we start it again in a different key! Same thing with Twinkle, Mary had a small lamb and others ... my favorite way to talk about "The Three Main Chords" is to play the scale regularly with a left finger while making corresponding agreements in the right hand. Both hands raise the octave as I say: "The only agreement, the two agreements, three agreements, four agreements ..." etc. Then I ask them to do it. (And I usually do not say anything about the agreement on the seventh step of the scale and as it is different from everything else; that it would be too many information right now!) And my favorite way to Playing the 3 main agreements in their fingers (and brain) is to use an energetic song, Louie Louie Wannabe is my favorite.
